PROFILE

I am deeply passionate about my transition into the field of Data Science because it allows me to channel my natural curiosity and love for challenges into solving complex real-world problems. My journey began when I recognized the parallels between analyzing sports performance and data-driven decision-making in business and technology. The discipline, determination, and teamwork skills I honed as an athlete have equipped me to thrive in this environment, and I am thrilled to embark on this exciting career path, where I can leverage data to drive innovation and make a meaningful impact.
